

NIKKEI

In the age of global proximity, the term fusion cuisine symbolizes the merging of regional cuisine – especially classical dishes and cooking techniques that are typical for a specific region or country with unusual ingredients from other countries and regions. This interplay of contrasts is especially exciting when whole continents are connected in a culinary way: the so called NIKKEI CUISINE represents Japanese cuisine with a South American influence originated from the kitchens of Japanese immigrants in America. Using surprising combinations and intense flavors NIKKEI cultivated a style that complements the Japanese fine sense of classically elegant dishes by adding cheerful, hearty South American elements from Peru and Brazil.

NINE

In the land of the rising sun, nine hours are the length of a good sleep. Additionally, the number nine represents the highest level of economically achievable success and the ideal number of people at a table in restaurants. Coincidentally the street number 9 of NIKKEI NINE serves as a connection between the innovative future and the traditional heritage of the Hotel Vier Jahreszeiten at the Inner Alster Lake.
